PREFACE.

This supplement contains all books added to the library, except books of fiction and books in the French and German languages, from July, 1895, to June, 1897, inclusive. The plan of the supplement is, in the main, the same as that of the general catalogue.

For explanations and instructions how to use the supplement, see the preface to the general catalogue. One deviation, however, from the plan of the general catalogue has been thought advisable. The references in the subject index are made to the pages (paging at the bottom) and not to the class numbers at the top of the page. Catalogues of the French and German books are issued separately. An asterisk (*) prefixed to the call-number means that the book is not for circulation. The letter J prefixed to the call-number means that the book is suited to juvenile readers. The initial letters I for Italian, S for Spanish, and R for Russian are prefixed to the call-numbers of books written in those languages.

Readers are requested to apply without hesitation to the librarian if they find any difficulty in understanding the catalogue. Any one discovering errors in the catalogue will kindly report them to the librarian.

Librarian.

NOTE:—Books of individual biography are marked with the letter B (biography) instead of the so-called classification numbers of the Dewey system (921 to 928 inclusive) in order to bring the books into alphabetical order on the shelves.

The general classification number 920 is printed however at the top of the page to preserve the numerical order of the classes as they follow each other in the catalogue.
